

Travel Training

Daniel had travelled around a lot with his sister and lacked confidence to travel without her. On his first day of training, Daniel told his trainer that he already knew the route from home to school. Within the second week we worked on building Daniel's confidence and problem solving skills.

By the third week of training Daniel also started to learn a new route to attend activities after school. Daniel now travels both routes alone and is enjoying being more independent.

"I am happy that Daniel has had the chance to do this challenge and it has given him a bit of confidence that he didn't have before. The programme has meant that Daniel is happier in himself"
